The geography of Chalmers research

ORCID @ Chalmers

- National project: "Author Identifiers and Publication Databases" (2012)
- Pilot (September 2013)
- Create and connect service, integration in local systems, support to researchers and faculties (2013-)
- Integration of ORCIDs in the national research infrastructure
- Primary focus on supporting local and (inter)national research infrastructure, bibliometrics
- Co-ordinated by the library, but not a "library issue"

Pilot study (2013)

- Department of Space and Geo Sciences, approx. 150 researchers
- Initiative from the library and from the head of department
- Object of the pilot was to try out the API and workflows and to learn about responses from the from researchers
- Batch creation of ORCIDs, using the Member API
- Support from the legal office
- Mixed result, slow responses in some cases
- Conclusions
 - early adoption - too early?
 - focus on infrastructure
 - creation of ORCIDs should probably be initiated by the individual researcher in the first phase

Create & connect service

- orcid.chalmers.se
- Create and provide a sustainable infrastructure for handling ORCIDs at Chalmers
- Provide an easy-to-use service for researchers to create ORCIDs and connect these to the local systems, and a one-stop solution for all things concerning ORCIDs at Chalmers, info & support
- Integrated in the local research infrastructure and administrative systems
- Developed in cooperation with the the central IT dept, using agile methods (SCRUM)
- Researchers targeted, but open for all - faculty, staff & students

Open Researcher & Contributor ID (ORCID) is an open, non-profit, community-driven effort to create and maintain a registry of unique researcher identifiers and a transparent method of linking research activities and outputs to these identifiers. It is unique in its ability to reach across disciplines, research sectors and national boundaries. It is a hub that connects researchers and research through the embedding of ORCID identifiers in key workflows, such as research script submissions, grant applications, and patent

Research Council (VR) has announced that ORCID will during 2014, and publishers such as Elsevier, Nature and Reuters have already started using ORCID in their systems.

Chalmers offers researchers and lecturers assistance with creating an ORCID profile to connect this with the local research environment.

Go to the ORCID website to create an ORCID, or to connect your existing ORCID to Chalmers. You will receive a verification e-mail from Chalmers once activated.

By linking your ORCID with Chalmers, your CID (Chalmers ID) will be able to file (with limited visibility), and that your ORCID will be included in Chalmers personnel database (PDB/CDKS). It is important that Chalmers as CPL will be able to read the information in your ORCID with limited visibility, such as e-mail address and
